

No, I do not believe cellular telephones should be allowed in flight. There is nothing wrong with not being "connected" for several hours. The noise onboard would be horrendous with everyone talking above everyone else to be heard.